Collaboration Opportunities

Partnership Approach

We typically start with low-commitment projects which help institutions know each other. Progressively we move on to types of collaborations that are increasingly impactful and resource intensive.

Erasmus+ Program

AUEB welcomes more than 450 international students from all over Europe every academic year through the Erasmus+ program. We currently collaborate with more than 250 institutions, offering over 70 courses in English every year to incoming students. In terms of size, this renders AUEB the most active Greek University in the program, relative to our size.

Academic Visits to Athens

During recent years AUEB has assisted a number of institutions from abroad with setting up short, immersive academic trips to Athens.

Leveraging the University's unique connections within academia, industry and Government, we have partnered with Universities like William & Mary, Drexel, Indiana University, University of Georgia and others to set up tailor-made itineraries of visits and speakers around any thematic area in economics and business.

AUEB-KSB Study Abroad Program

AUEB has partnered with the Kelley School of Business (KSB), Indiana University, in an agreement that brings US students every spring to Athens for a semester of study. Courses offered to Kelley students are tailored to their home curriculum. This arrangement enables US students to spend 5 months of study in Greece, while earning credit at their home institution.

AUEB is working on expanding this program, making it available to more partner Universities from abroad.

Academic Partnerships

We offer 8 of a total of 29 Master's programs entirely in English:

- MSc in Economics
- MSc in Business Analytics
- MBA International
- MSc in Financial Management
- MSc in International Shipping, Finance & Management
- MSc in Marketing & Communication
- MSc in Data Science
- MSc in Statistics

> Dual Master's Degrees

All of our Master's programs are internationally ranked and accredited (e.g. by AMBA). A number of them have partnered with esteemed international Universities to provide students with a dual degree, enabling them to acquire two degrees in less time than would be otherwise required, and at reduced cost. Some of our partners at present include the University of Pavia (Italy), EDHEC Business School (France) and Stevens Institute of Technology (USA).

> Undergraduate degree in International Business & Technology

Starting September 2025, AUEB will begin offering its first 4-year, entirely English-taught bachelor program in International Business and Technology. The program is designed for international students who wish to become versed in the many facets of international business, in particular as it relates also to technology, while experiencing the best of what a metropolis like Athens can offer.

Summer Schools in Greece

Greece is an ideal summer school destination, and AUEB is particularly active in this direction. Our summer schools enable participants to further their expertise in subject areas where AUEB is a leader while enjoying the amenities that the Greek summer, Athens and the islands have to offer. In recent years we have set up summer schools with Universities like Princeton, Michigan State, and Goldsmiths University of London, and partnered with others like Stevens Institute of Technology to set up international conferences on leadership and management.

Joint PhD Supervision

We consider joint PhD supervision the pinnacle of academic partnerships. As such, this endeavour can produce significant results but at the same time requires the most commitment from all parties involved in order to be successful. Typically such partnerships come about as the last step in our collaboration with institutions from abroad.

International Networks

AUEB is the only Greek University participating in the HERMES Network, having been a member for more than a decade.

Since 2009 AUEB is also home to a Business Confucius Institute, the third to open in Europe and the only one in Greece.

What Our Partners Say

“ Our visit to Greece was insightful on so many levels. Thanks to our friends at the Athens University of Economics and Business for arranging visits to Greek businesses and institutions, we learned about the Greek economy, its culture and most importantly the Greek people. We were most impressed by the sense of community and resilience that helped Greece overcome the challenging times as it now looks to a bright future. ”

Professor R. Kohli, William & Mary

“ My experience from collaborating with students from the Athens University of Economics and Business is unforgettable. The people I met are not just collaborators in the conclusion of a project, they have become some of my best friends! Their enthusiasm throughout our collaboration was contagious and led us all into more inspiration and success. ”

H. Tippets, Kelley School of Business student
